Introduction

In the context of COVID-19 travel restrictions and social distancing, the proposed method for following up the achievement and analysis of the progress of work in the realization of joint research-executive projects is to hold a series of webinars between AREEO and YAAS. In the first series of symposiums, each contact person from both sides (AREEO and YAAS) will present a progress report on the joint research projects. Each progress report is relate to the main topics of the action plan, including wheat, oil seed, tea, mushroom, silk, flowers and ornamental plants and knowledge management as well as rice (which accepted through some sessions and negotiations). The contact persons from both sides should cooperate with each other to present the achievements, challenges, problems and solutions in the international symposium in order to effective realization of joint projects in the future. Thus, each of the contact person will present a progress report on the joint research projects based on the main topics of the action plan in this symposium. In other upcoming meeting series, eight specific symposiums in the above eight topics will be hold with the presence of project managers and the related contact persons from both side to discuss and negotiate with one another on the related joint research projects.
